- (a) the disclosure required by an order allows the person to whom it is addressed to comply with the order without disclosing all of the keys in his possession; and
- (b) there are different keys, or combinations of keys, in the possession of that person the disclosure of which would constitute compliance with the order, the person may select which of the keys, or combination of keys, to disclose for the purpose of complying with the order.

- (c) the number of—
  - (i) persons to whom the key is disclosed or otherwise made available; and
  - (ii) copies made of the key,is limited to the minimum that is necessary for the purpose of enabling the protected communication to be accessed or put into an intelligible form.

- (b) the parties to the proceedings would not be unduly prejudiced thereby, the Court may exclude such disclosure.

(5) Any information obtained by an interception, which would be privileged if the interception had not been carried out, shall remain privileged to the extent that the information would be privileged if the interception had not been carried out.

15.—(1) A person who, in an application or affidavit under this Act, makes a statement which he knows to be false in any material particular commits an offence and is liable upon summary conviction in a Resident Magistrate's Court to a fine not exceeding three million dollars or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to both such fine and imprisonment.
